RE: TBH Series 4484, LLC

Dear Investor,

We are writing to provide an update on your investment in the above-referenced property. As you may recall from our previous communications, Ignite Funding, as Asset Manager, took ownership of this property on behalf of investors at the foreclosure sale in January 2019. Since that time, the property has been listed on the market for sale.

Upon taking ownership of the property at the foreclosure sale in January 2019, we estimated the value of the property to be $400,000 based on market conditions at that time; however, there have been no viable or successful offers on this property since that time. We have received an offer from a buyer to purchase this property through a two-phase takedown that would provide a total purchase price of $375,000. The buyer proposes a two-phase buyout of this property in which he would pay half of the purchase price ($187,500) upfront to investors, with an anticipated initial close date in August 2020. The remaining amount due through the offer of $187,500 would be secured through a second lien position on the property, second only to the construction financed by the bank to complete the construction on the property.

The buyer is Huish Construction, headquartered in Riverton, Utah. Bret Wright is the owner and General Contractor for Huish Construction and has more than 17 years of experience building custom homes throughout Utah. The buyer intends to purchase the lots and has secured construction financing through a bank to build the homes on these lots. This buyer has purchased other properties under the same offer structure from Ignite Funding investors and has successfully completed the construction and closed on the purchase of the properties. He expects to be able to complete the construction and sell the property within 9 months which would allow investors to receive the remaining purchase price at that time; however, there is no guarantee that the buyer will be able to complete construction of the home or sell the home within that period of time. If the borrower is unable to complete construction, sell the home within the anticipated 12 months, he has an optional extension allowing an additional 6 months to complete the purchase at a 1% fee which would increase the final purchase price to investors.

You may recall that in August 2019 you received a partial return of principal on this loan that was disbursed from the remaining construction control funds held for this property. This purchase offer is in addition to that initial return of principal, bringing the total estimated return of principal to 64%.

The alternative to accepting the current offer is to continue to hold the property in anticipation of a higher offer in the future. There is no guarantee that a better offer will be received and there will be ongoing carrying costs and asset management fees until the final disposition of the property, which could erode any additional amount offered.
